TEACHERS INSTITUTE NOV. 5 FINAL SESSION

With an attendance of more than 100 people, the closing sessions of the Teachers Institute of the fifth normal district were held yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the El Paso County building. The program was limited and a series of short addresses were given by the instructors and county superintendents. The afternoon session was a brief fall before the institute. According to a number of people who attended the sessions, the institute was the most successful ever held in Colorado Springs.

HACK DRIVERS ASK THAT SOLICITING BE STOPPED

Asking that all tourist soliciting be prohibited and characterized as an undue advertisement in Dallas, Texas, states that all the principal scenic sections of the region can be reached by street cars. A petition signed by 42 hackmen was presented to City Attorney Henry C. Hall yesterday. The petitioners claim that they are not allowed to solicit business, while the larger firms and live-inners do.

Bills Are a Bad Indication

The appearance of bills leads many people to conclude that a man's head is too small. They are more apt to signify a condition of sick blood. It sounds queer to take a blood bath, but that is precisely the effect when you use that remarkable remedy, S. S. A. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In a few minutes its influence is at work in every artery vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. And best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. You can get S. S. A. at any drug store. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antiseptic ever discovered. Beware of any effort to sell you something claimed to be "just as good." It is a popular case and you desire expert advice. Write to The Swift Specific Co., 126 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

LABOR DAY PROGRAM NEARING COMPLETION

Celebration This Year to Be Biggest Yet Attempted in Region

Judging by the program, which is practically complete, the Labor day celebration in Colorado Springs this year will be the largest event of its kind ever held in the Pikes Peak region.

After the speeches, a baseball game between picked teams will be played and the field sports events run off.

GOVERNORS AND AUTO MEN WILL DISCUSS COAST-TO-COAST ROAD AT MEETING HERE

Problems Arising Over Rock Highway to Be Threshed Out at Special Conference

Problems which have arisen over the selection of a route and the actual construction of a national coast-to-coast highway will be thoroughly discussed at a conference to be held in Colorado Springs August 26 between the governors of the various states who will be in attendance at the annual convention of the American Automobile association.

Robert P. Hooper, president of the American Automobile association, who will be the official host at the conference, announced yesterday that he had granted the automobile men a conference the first day of the meeting. The object of the conference other than to thresh out the highway problem, was not known. The American Automobile association officials are not going into details in their request for a conference.

Conference Will Not Decide Route. Although the matter of the selection of a route for the coast-to-coast highway undoubtedly will be discussed at the meeting, the decision of the conference, if it reaches one, probably will have little effect on the ultimate choice of the promoters of the road. It is not considered likely that the governors of the various states through which the highway is to pass will go as far as to select a route.

Smith broke away and began jabbing. Finally, tired of Flynn's wall, a night opportunist to the fore, he came in even at the end of the round.

In the second round Smith set to get close, but Smith kept him at long range, scoring point after point. At the end of the round Flynn managed to land a right hook to the head. This wound and the three following were in Smith's favor.

At the end of the third round the referee called for the original card. Flynn boxing in, while Smith tried to avoid infighting. At the end of the third round Smith was bleeding freely from the nose, and Flynn from a cut over the left eye. In the fourth round, Flynn landed a short-arm hook on Smith's left eye which brought blood. Smith's hard hooks and jabs had Flynn weak at the end of the round.

In the fifth Flynn swung a terrific right to the ribs, sending Smith to the ropes. The Californian came back with a hail of right jabs and hooks. Then, with a right uppercut flush on the jaw, he knocked Flynn down for a count of eight. Another right to the

MERELY HUNGER FOR OFFICE

WHOEVER carefully examines an editorial in any Republican paper on the Republican proposal to fuse their party and the Progressives will find between the lines if not in them—single, all-pervading and dominant motive—hunger for office.

Ever and always the thought that spurs the Republicans on to renewed effort is that if the two parties can be united they can win the next election, and if the next election is won there will be feasting at the picnic. They want offices and nothing else, and their ravenous appetite is apparent in every argument they make.

They carefully avoid talking principles. They say nothing of the political crimes (for they were nothing else) committed by the leaders of the Republican party last year, and which led to the debacle at Chicago and the subsequent organization of the Progressive party. They profess no repentance for these sins; offer no assurances of better party management in the future. They do not repudiate the principles of their party which are at absolute variance with those of the Progressives; instead they openly ally with the Progressives and yet in the same breath they say, yes, employ the Progressives in line with them in order, furthermore, that they may win the next election and taste the joys of office once more!

This characteristic desire for forgiveness without repentance is expressed by The Evening Telegraph in an editorial printed yesterday. It complains that the leaders of the new party are "willing to continue the guerilla warfare begun last fall upon the Republican party and continue to seek to divide former Republicans into two camps; thus continuing Democratic rule and Democratic policies throughout the state and nation."

We may remark parenthetically that it is a misnomer to apply the term "guerilla warfare" to a contest in which the Progressives beat the Republicans decisively in almost every state in the Union, getting eighty-one electoral votes to their fifteen, and reducing them to the humiliating position of third party.

But apart from this, it is well to consider that there may be worse things than "continuing Democratic rule and Democratic policies." The Progressives are not footing on the side lines for the Democrats far from it. They have their own game to play, and they are playing it so well that according to present indications they will win the pennant in 1916 and keep it flying over the Capitol for at least four years. But if the Telegraph thinks "Democratic rule and Democratic policies" an unmitigated calamity it might contrast them with the last rule and policies of Wilson's doing his share of blundering, but he isn't making quite the mess of it that his predecessor did.

Again in the following paragraph our Republican neighbor betrays the dominant motive of lust for office which is back of its desire for fusion. (The black-face type is The Telegraph's):

"The people who voted last year for the Progressive ticket as a matter of principle will hesitate to change before the next election and so it is not possible to vote their principles and at the same time elect their candidates." The average voter wants results, not a concern in following the political fortunes of a few men who claim to be leaders of the Progressives, or other parties.

Precisely. And the average voter has learned by dear experience that in the long run there is small hope of electing the kind of candidates he wants if he follows the Republican party. And he has also learned that this is so because that party has no principles to speak of except the one of getting and holding office. The average voter knows now that he must make a fight for his principles—and win—and it will then be relatively a simple matter to put the right sort of men in office.

It is unwarranted assumption for The Telegraph to say that "the mass of the Progressives" are of the Republican belief. In the only election that gave a chance to express itself in an unmitigated, Progressive and the whole-souled enthusiasm with which it has since rejected the almost tearful pleas of the Republicans for fusion is a pretty good indication that it is still standing pat on that subject.

THE MEXICAN TANGLE

PRESIDENT WILSON, it appears, will lay his cards on the table. There is to be no bluffing in the game with Huerta, but it is to be played in full sight of the whole world. Indeed, other nations, especially the European powers which are deeply interested in the outcome of the affair, are to be asked to stand around the table and watch every play.

This seems to be the meaning of the news from Washington explaining the procedure incident to the visit to the City of Mexico of Mr. John Lind, the President's personal representative. Huerta has impudently informed the State Department that Mr. Lind's presence in Mexico will be undesirable unless he brings official recognition of the Huerta government. Very well; Mr. Lind will go anyway, and he will report every detail of his negotiations. His reports will be transmitted in Washington to the representatives of foreign governments, so that all may see the disinterestedness of the efforts for peace made by our Government.

This procedure ought to have the effect of giving to the Administration the moral support of the entire world—a factor which Huerta can scarcely afford to ignore. Unquestionably he has made a tactical blunder in sending a note repudiating Mr. Lind, even before he had been officially notified of that envoy's appointment. The Provisional President of Mexico does not seem to be as skilled in diplomacy as he is in murder.

THE ATTACK ON SULZER

SINCE his advent to office last January Governor Sulzer of New York has been engaged in a bitter fight with Ex-Bartender Murphy, leader of Tammany. It is a finish fight with no quarter asked or given, and it is not surprising that Sulzer's enemies have raked his record from the beginning to find something creditable in his private life.

Yesterday testimony was presented to the joint legislative law-making committee in Albany to show that Governor Sulzer was guilty of the same old story. The attack on Sulzer's private life is a well-known fact. One of the witnesses testified that Sulzer had a debt account with him amounting to nearly $50,000, and added that he was testifying "with lips unsealed, at the Governor's suggestion."

This remark indicates that Governor Sulzer will have something to say in his own defense which may change the apparently damaging aspect of the case. Indeed, it would be strange if the charges were true, if for no other reason that they are brought by such a man as Murphy.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

THE Editor of The Gazette:
 A lot of the Progressive writers and speakers are loud over what they term "the disintegration of the Socialist party," and there is no end of harping about the disintegration of the Socialist party because "the Socialists are working for the party," and because there's a split over the I. W. O. and because of a lot of other snags our critics make into full-grown camels.

Now, there's nothing for the Progressives to feel puffed up, over the half-splitting now going on in the Socialist movement. Most of all should they rejoice over the event. The history of the Socialist movement is at hand to teach us that the more the Socialists fight among themselves all the more numerous will be the clear-headed Socialists.

There was once a time when the identical criticism in the Socialist movement means to do away with religion, marriage and even morality, later on they say in Socialism the inbred expression of a few diseased minds fit for the lunatic asylum, but as we progressed, these intellectual luminaries began to see in Socialism something wonderful; they saw a thing that we could never practice unless the unexpected could happen and that means that we had to change human nature.

But the human nature business idea seems to have but little effect on many newspaper men. They are right now hammering on another bugaboo known as I. W. O. syndicalism, sabotage and direct action and the wild accounts of the criminality of these things seem to amaze them more because the writers do not display their ignorance of anything that is to do with it.

Thousands of wage slaves, clerks, factory hands, never wrote down. There shall be no law and no ordinance for you and for the stranger who is a friend with you. Translated into modern language this means that when a writer is engaged in exposing a hypocrite he should do so without betraying the "nationality" who may not be a member of the writer's thinking class but who is a member in his Socialism, industrial unionism or syndicalism; may be as sincere a worker for the betterment of mankind as any hired scribe or newspaper man who works for a cause he privately does not believe in.

FROM OTHER PENS

THE JAPAN ISSUE RESTS
 From the Philadelphia Press
 Little has been heard of late of any further outbreak of imperialism on the part of the Japanese. In the nature of positive proof of a complete change of heart on the part of the Japanese, the part of that nation, we have the statement of the Japanese minister of finance, and the statement of the Japanese minister of foreign affairs, that the Japanese government has no intention of making a war over this controversy, and that it hostilities arise, will be only as a result of a section of the United States.

 Whatever it has once existed during this controversy it has obviously cooled. Next month the offensive Webb law will go into effect in California, and it will then be in order to test it in the courts. Both governments are evidently satisfied to let the matter take an orderly course.

INCURABLE
 From the Chicago Tribune
 A youth now under arrest for a confessed assault upon a policeman said: "I felt like killing a cop. I'm a bad man, I am. I don't care whether I go to the jailhouse or not. I started out stealing from children, and I'll be a crook all my life."

In all probability this is a case of incurable depravity, and it is by no means unique. There are persons who completely degenerate as to be beyond the reach of punitive measures, or educational, to say nothing of mutilative measures, and they are a serious and constant peril to any community. In this case, as the Record-Herald remarks, "if the boy's victim recovers, the young criminal himself will probably get off with a relatively light sentence; he will then be returned to society, upon which it is his conviction that he was born to prey and which he will continue to regard as his primary. For the present, and whatever the degree of responsibility we can attach to them, it seems to be plain that our punishment must be exaggerated and that it is clear that they are incurable offenders they should be segregated for life."

Our persistent neglect to meet this problem and deal with it in the light of modern science is a painful example of social inefficiency.
 We let these degenerates prey upon us, and, worse, we let them breed and perpetuate their kind.

THE DOVE DID NOT LIGHT

From the Troy Record
 It is a little strange that Secretary Bryan, who advertises himself as the apostle of world peace, has not been invited to adjust the Balkan difficulty and keep the powers from rushing on their arms in constant fear of one another. Perhaps none of those interested cared to ask the Secretary to forgo his lecture profits to do a little practical missionary work for the attractive but nagging peace cause.

TAXES

BY ORSON FITCH
 Author of "As Time Goes By"

Taxes are something of which we have all heard, but which few of us have experienced. Taxes are a burden, a pain, a sorrow, and that only death and taxes are certain. Taxes are no more certain than death, but they are no less certain.

When death comes man folds up like a tired autumn leaf and John Tax is a majority. But when the sweater pokes his head in the door, man is a different creature.

Man is a different creature when the sweater pokes his head in the door. Man is a different creature when the sweater pokes his head in the door. Man is a different creature when the sweater pokes his head in the door.

W. D. ATTERBURY

Hats Off or Hats On?

Frank M. Ricknell in Chippincocks.
 Strangely variable and contradictory are the customs that govern the hat while it is on duty. In comparing the French with the Germans, would not one say that the former have more of that surface politeness which goes to make good manners? In the reading-room of the National library at Paris men wear their hats freely if they choose. In the Royal library at Berlin (Joseph First tells us) a cripple was once sharply rebuked by an official for coming to the desk with his hat on, though the heavy load of books he was bringing made it almost impossible for him to carry it in his hand.

The visitor to New York's public library meets natives who tip to the hat under conditions with hard heads, wearing an air of indifference, and all ready to answer to the citizen of a city that has always had a real public library. Probably after a while familiarity will cause New Yorkers to feel less ill at ease within the portals of the Bryant park reservoir of literature and wisdom.

We occasionally see in a public library a hat such as the "Jockey" and others, which are not to be entered in this case, taking us back to the old days when the hat was a part of the man's equipment. The hat was a part of the man's equipment. The hat was a part of the man's equipment.

The hat was a part of the man's equipment. The hat was a part of the man's equipment. The hat was a part of the man's equipment. The hat was a part of the man's equipment.

IN THE EARLY DAYS

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

August 9, 1893.

One hundred and seventy-five members of the San Francisco club of Philadelphia, en route to the Knights Templar convalescence in El Paso, were spending a few days in Colorado Springs and Manitou.

Miss Lillie McClellan, the belle of St. Louis, was considered the most beautiful girl in Manitou and the fact was given prominent mention in the daily papers.

There was a terrible outbreak of yellow fever in Florida. Everyone who could do so was leaving the state and many were expected to come here.

The Broadmore Casino company was in financial trouble and had to ask for a receiver. However, it was announced that the report would remain open for the season.

Between 30 and 40 people a day were going up to Green Mountain Falls for dinner at the hotel.
